THIS work was first published in 1782, and several additions were made to it, in confequence of the pay-office act passed in 1783, and the new militia act in 1786. But since the 1st of January 1783, very considerable alterations having been made in the pay and allowances of the army: a new edition was rendered absolutely necessary.

As the editor has procured every information from the different offices, he flatters himfelf, that the present edition (which is almost an entire new work) will be found still more useful to agents, pay-masters, and army officers of every rank, than those which preceded it.

TREATISE

MILITARY FINANCE.

PART I.

Present State of the British Forces.

BEFORE we proceed to the subject of this Treatise, it may not be thought either incurious or unuseful, to take a short view of the original establishment and gradual increase of the British forces.

The first traces of a standing army, regularly paid and provided, are to be found in Ireland; where from the internal commotions and frequent rebellions of the natives, it became requisite to establish a military force. This force varied, according to the exigencies of the times, and seldom exceeded 80 horse, and 200 or 300 archers.

The first regular establishment of a military force in England was in the reign of Henry VII.

when the yeomen of the guard were inftituted as an immediate defence to the king's person: a purpose for which they are but little calculated at present.

In the reign of Henry VIII. anno 1535, the flanding forces in Ireland, in time of peace, confifted of 380 horse, including mounted archers, and 160 foot. In Queen Mary's time they were increased to 1200.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth the peace establishment in Ireland was from 1500 to 2000 men, and continued the same till the reign of Charles I. when Lord Strafford raised a considerable army there. At the same time Charles collected a large army in England, on the pretence of a French war; which was soon after disbanded. In this reign the royal regiment of horse-guards was raised at Oxford.

The oldest regiment of infantry in the British fervice was raised in 1633.* In 1674, the forces amounted to 1000 horse, and 3920 foot; con-

Royal Scots. It was not raised in England, but brought from Scotland, and put on British pay. When it was first raised is entirely unknown at it is supposed to be the oldest regiment in Europe.

fisting of three troops of horse-guards, one regiment of horse, and four regiments of infantry; of which the first regiment had 24 companies, being composed, as it is at present, of two battalions.

Anno 1684, the army amounted to above 8000 men: that on the Irish establishment being at the same time increased to 7000. William III. being constantly engaged in foreign or domestic wars, augmented the army to above three times that number. At the same time, Lewis XIV. brought such vast bodies of men into the field, as obliged all the other European powers to increase their establishment in proportion.

The continental wars, in which we have been almost incessantly engaged since the revolution, together with the prodigious number of our acquisitions and establishments abroad, have made it necessary for us to keep up a considerable army, even in times of the most profound peace; to which the new method of funding has contributed not a little, by throwing the expence of our military and naval equipments from our own shoulders upon those of posterity.

In 1746, the troops on the British establishment consisted of four troops of horse-guards, two troops of grenadier-guards, one royal regiment of horfe-guards, four regiments of horfe, ten of dragoons, three regiments of foot-guards, and thirty regiments of foot. The Irish establishment was then at 12000, confifting of horse, foot and dragoons. At present Ireland maintains t coo. and the off the had a de to see au que of

In the course of the war of 1756, Great Britain had above 150,000 men in pay. At the conclufion of the war, the forces were reduced to about 40,000; confifting of 2 troops of horfe-guards, 2 of grenadier guards, 1 royal regiment of horseguards, 4 regiments of horse, 19 of dragoons, 3 regiments of foot-guards, 75 regiments of foot, and 8 independent companies of invalids; the whole upon a very low peace establishment.

During the war with America and the powers allied against us, we had near 200,000, exclusive of the navy, comprehending the militia, provincial and fencible corps in Great Britain, and the foreign troops and provincial corps abroad.

At the conclusion of the late war (1783) the army on the British and Irish establishments was as follows:

Two troops of horse-guards, 2 troops of grehadier guards, r royal regiment of horse-guards, 4 regi4 regiments of horse, 3 regiments of dragoonguards, 19 regiments of heavy and light dragoons; 3 regiments of soot-guards, confisting of 7 battalions; 73 regiments of infantry, confisting of 75 battalions; 1 royal regiment of artillery, confisting of four battalions; and 46 independent companies of invalids. The infantry regiments were reduced from 12 to 8 companies, each consisting of 2 serjeants, 2 drummers, and 51 rank and file.

In 1787, on the prospect of a war with France, 2 battalions were added to the 60th regiment; the 41st, which was an invalid regiment, was made a duty one, and the men formed into invalid companies; 5 Highland regiments were raised and sent to the East-Indies; so that at the conclusion of the year, there were 81 battalions of infantry, 9 of which were in the East-Indies, confisting of 1000 men each.

In 1788, the 2 troops of horse-guards, and the 2 of grenadier-guards were reduced, and 2 regiments of life-guards formed in their room.

The royal artillery have likewise been much enlarged by the Duke of Richmond, and an invalid battalion formed.

The corps of engineers, now called the royal regiment of engineers, was new modelled, and feveral companies of artificers attached to it.

B 2 regiment

The 4 regiments of horse in Ireland were made dragoon-guards.

Of the Pay of the Forces.

THE gross pay of a regiment, whether of horse or foot, is divided as follows:

- 1. The full pay of each officer and foldier.
- 2. The allowance to widows.
- 3. The allowance to captains in lieu of the non-effectives.
- 4. The allowance to the agent.

The allowance to widows confifts of the full pay of two private men per company, and is part of the establishment in every regiment.

The following annual allowances are now granted by the Pay-office act, instead of the non-effective men.

To every captain of a company of 76 men or upwards, 56l. 10s.

To every captain of a company of less than 76 men, but more than 50, 471. 78. 6d.

Liver at bakes work abstract to the in To

To every captain of a company of 50 only; or of any number less than 50, 381. 5s.

The allowance to captains of companies; confifts of Non-effective and Contingent Allowance.

The non-effective is invariably 201. per annum for each captain. The contingent, being the fublishence of a certain number of men at 6d. per diem, is regulated by the strength of the company.

A captain of infantry feldom derives any perfonal advantage from the contingent allowance, as it is the practice of the army to give it to the fubaltern who pays his company.

B 3

It

It is likewise usual for the colonel commandant, to give both his non-effective and contingent allowance to the captain-lieutenant.

In the cavalry, the allowances to captains, pay-master, surgeon, and for a riding-house, are as follows:

the first of the party of the party of the party of the

The daily allowance to the agent, which is iffued with the subsistence of the regiment, is for infantry, I warrant man per company, per diem, at 6d.—and for cavalry, I warrant man, per diem, at 1s. 2d. for each troop.

In the pay-office the gross sum for each regiment, ment, comprehending the full pay, and allowances, undergoes the following division:

- 1. The fubfiftence of each officer and foldier.
- 2. The poundage.
- 3. The hospital.

- 4. The allowance to widows.
- 5. The clearings and nett off reckonings.

Out of the full pay a certain portion is iffued monthly in advance from the pay-office; which is called the fubfiftence. The remainder, after certain deductions are made, is paid yearly after it becomes due: the officers balance being termed clearings or arrears, and that of the non-commission officers and foldiers, nett off reckonings, which is allowed the colonel for clothing his regiment.

The deductions from the pay are:

- 1. The poundage, or 1s. in the pound sterling from the full pay of each officer and soldier.
- 2. One day's full pay in the year from each officer and foldier, for Chelsea Hospital.
- 3. Agency; being 2d. in the pound on the full pay of the regiment.

Besides the above deduction from the full pay, there was a further deduction from the subsistence of the non-commission officers and private foldiers, foldiers, for the pay-mafter and furgeon of the regiment. This deduction was made by the regimental pay-mafter, and not, like the others, by the pay-mafter general of the army. It was 2d. per week from each ferjeant, 1½d. per week from each corporal and drummer, and 1d. per week from each private foldier. But this deduction for the pay-mafter and furgeon is now abolished.

The pay-mafter and furgeon have, for every regiment of 500 men and upwards, an allowance of 120l. per annum, each.

For regiments of 360 men, or not exceeding 500, an allowance of 70l. per annum, each.

Regiments are allowed 30l. per annum for an hospital, in Great Britain and North America; and 4cl. in Gibraltar and the West Indies, Jamaica excepted, where 20l. only is allowed; that Island allowing a certain sum annually for hospital expences, and furnishing wine for the fick.

Surgeons are also allowed 5s. per man for ino-

The furgeons allowance, or, as it is more commonly called, medicine money, is a personal allowance which he may receive either from the agent.

agent directly or from the pay-mafter. The hofpital allowance is confidered as regimental, fo that the furgeon never receives any part of it from the agent: it is a fund in the hands of the pay-mafter for defraying every expence incurred on that head.

• The off-reckonings for clothing are 6d. per diem from each ferjeant, 4d. per diem from each corporal and drummer, and 2d. per diem from each private foldier: from which after the abovementioned deductions of poundage, hospital, and agency, have been made, the remainder is called the nett off-reckonings. Vide Abstract of the Enquiry into the State of the Army.

As the subsistence is intended to provide for the immediate maintenance of the troops, so the clearings and nett off-reckonings are intended as a fund for clothing them: and they usually are, and always should be, issued for that purpose, a short time previous to the spring review, about sisten months after they become due. The agent of each regiment receives the clearings and nett off-reckonings at the pay-office.

By an act passed in 1783, for regulating the office of the pay-master general, considerable alteration, as already partly noticed, took place;

but no part of it extended to the life-guards, the royal regiment of horse-guards, and three regiments of soot-guards; those troops to be governed by their former regulations, in the same manner as if this act had not been made.

The following is an abstract from it.

In confequence of the report from the commissioners of accounts respecting the pay-mastergeneral, an act was paffed in 1783, by which it is enacted, (in order to prevent the abuses that have heretofore prevailed, and particularly to obviate the circumstance of an enormous balance remaining in the hands of the pay-mafter general, for many years after his leaving the office) that whenever money is wanted for the fervices of the army, the pay-mafter general is by a memorial delivered to the treasury, to state the particular fums wanted, and to pray that they may be iffued to the governor and company of the bank of England, on his account. On receiving this memorial, the commissioners of his Majesty's treasury for the time being are to direct the auditor of the exchequer to iffue the fum required to the officers of the bank, in the same manner as they have heretofore been iffued to the paymafters general; and all fuch monies fo iffued are to be placed to an account kept in the books of the governor and company of the bank of England, intituled, The Account of the Pay-master-general of his Majesty's Forces; and the name of such pay-master-general for the time being specified: so that henceforward no money is to be paid immediately from the exchequer into the hands of the pay-master-general; but that officer, or his deputy, is to draw occasionally for all army services, upon the bank: inserting in his drafts the heads of service to which the sums therein mentioned are to be applied.

In the first memorial of each month to the treasury, the pay-master-general is to specify the balance of public money then lying in the bank on his account; which balance, on the death or removal of a pay-master, is to vest in his successor. He is also to make up an annual account, from the 24th of December to the 24th of December following, of the ordinary and extraordinary services of the army, intituled, The Account of the Pay-master-general of his Majesty's Forces, to be signed and attested by every pay-master-general who may have paid or discharged any part of the said account. This account is to be transmitted, together with proper vouchers, to the auditor of the imprest, who is within fix months to examine it; and if found satisfactory, to present it to the proper officer for declaration; after which, an acquittance in the usual form is to be given to the pay-master.

This act likewise embraces several other objects in consequence of the suggestions made by the commissioners of accounts, which are comprehended under the following heads:

Fees of Office.

No fees are to be taken in the pay master's office, for business done therein, by the officers, clerks or servants, on penalty of dismission, and being rendered incapable of serving for three years: nor are the agents of regiments any longer to stop the two days pay out of each officer's arrears, which they have heretofore been accustomed to do, avowedly for the purpose of discharging sees of office. Any agent offending in this particular is liable to the same penalty and incapacity. This, however, is not to be so construed, as to deprive the pay-master of the ordinary allowances for himself, and for contingencies, according to the usual course of office, nor of the power of removing and appointing officers.

Clothing.

The pay-mafter is to form his memorials to the treasury for the monies appropriated for clothing, on the 24th of June, and the 24th of December of each year, and to iffue his drafts upon the bank, in equal payments, to fuch perfons as have regular affignments from the feveral colonels, or officers commandant of corps.—The favings made in the clothing of the invalid companies is to be applied towards a fund for an augmentation to the half pay of officers, who have been maimed in his Majesty's service, and to the widows and children of fuch as have been killed .- The profits arifing to colonels, &c. from the clothing, and their emoluments from the non-effective or warrant-men, are not to be affected by this act; but they are to enjoy all those privileges, profits and emoluments, in the fame manner as if this act had not been framed.

Colonels of infantry, whether of the line, or fencibles, derive whatever profit may arise on the balance of the clothing account; but the commandants of fencible cavalry derive none, nor are they to suffer any loss should the clothing balance be unfavourable.

They receive the fame allowance of 24 months off-reckonings that standing regiments of cavalry do: as also an allowance for horse furniture. An account of receipts and difburfements, under proper heads, is stated to the public, and the balance fettled between them. Debentures

Are to be made out annually from December 25, except when the fervice may require them to be made out for any part or parts of a year; and the fecretary at war is, together with the debentures, to form estimates of the several annual fervices under diffinct heads; of which copies are to be transmitted to the pay-mastergeneral. The fecretary at war is also to transmit from time to time, to the pay-mafter's office, an account of the effective officers and privates of the regulars and embodied militia in Great Britain; to which account the pay-mafter is in his drafts and memorials to conform.

Recruiting.

An estimate is to be formed by the secretary at war of the fums necessary for recruiting each regiment, troop or company of his Majesty's forces, forces, and is to be transmitted to the pay-master's office, who is required to form his memorials, and to iffue his drafts on this head, at the times and in the proportions, which the secretary at war shall direct; and each recruiting officer is to send every two months an abstract of the numbers recruited, to the adjutant-general, and a copy of the same, together with a regular and exact account of the expences which have attended the said service during the two preceding months, to the agent of the corps for which such officer is recruiting.

New regulations and inftructions having lately been printed by order of the adjutant general, for the recruiting companies and troops of regiments on foreign stations; every officer employed at home, on that service, should make himself master of the different articles detailed therein.

Allowances.

es,

This act is not to prevent the pay-maftergeneral iffuing to the agents, in monthly payments, the allowances given to them in lieu of the fubfiftence of the non-effective or warrantmen formerly paid to them. The allowance heretofore made to the colonel or commandant, known by the name of allowances to the colonel of the subsistence of non effective men, called warrantmen and hauthois, is to be added to the pay of the said colonels and commandants: and the paymaster-general is to issue the same at the time the subsistence of the army is issued.

The agent's allowance has been treated of when on the subject of captains, non-effective and contingent men.

Commandants of corps have the following daily allowance issued monthly with their sub-fiftence.

In infantry, one warrant man at 6d. per diem, for each company.

In cavalry, one hauthois at 1s. 6d. and one warrant man at 1s. 2d. per diem, for each troop. Inflead of the former allowances from the non-effective subfishence to the captains of troops and companies, the specific allowances as stated in the foregoing tables, (p. 7, 8,) for infantry and cavalry, are now substituted; for which the pay-mastergeneral is to issue his drafts on the 24th of June and the 24th of December every year in equal payments, and to charge the same to the account of the corps to which the said captains belong.

The captains of the regiment and independent companies companies of invalids, instead of the subsistence of the contingent men and non effectives which they have been accustomed to receive, are, as an indemnisication for the repair of arms, burials, and losses by men dying in their debt, to be allowed 100l. each, when their companies are at the establishment of 70 men; and 80l. each, when the establishment is under the said number of private men; the corps of invalids being considered as an honourable retirement for officers of long service.

The allowances to the pay-masters and surgeons of the foot, instead of the stoppages which are returned, are to be 120l. annually to each of the said pay-masters and surgeons, when the establishment of their companies is 50 private mentor upwards; and 70l. when their companies consist of a smaller number of men.—The annual allowances to the pay masters, surgeons and riding-masters of the horse and dragoons, in lieu of the monies issued under the name of grass-money, are to be as follows: To the pay-masters 10l. for each troop, when the establishment of the troop amounts to 40 men; and 7l. 15s. when the establishment is lower; to the surgeon 8l. for each troop, when the establishment is at 40 men, and

6l. 4s. when it is lower. For the riding masters, rough riders, and incidental expences relating to the same, an annual allowance is to be made to the colonel, lieutenant colonel and major commandant of every corps, of 23l.6s. for each troop, when the establishment of the troop amounts to 40 private men, and 18l. 1s. for each troop, when reduced below that number of privates.

For corps of one and two troops no surgeon nor pay-master is allowed on their establishment. The captains and riding-master, however, receive their allowances, as before stated in the scale or table for cavalry.

For medical attendance and medicines for the fick there is allowed:

Per annum.

For one troop of 46 privates 15 0 0

For two troops of 46 privates each 25 0 0

For one troop of 76 privates 21 0 0

In corps newly raised, all these allowances for captains, pay-master, surgeon, and riding master, commence from an intermediate period, equally distant from the date of the letter of service and the day of the establishment of the corps.

Musters.

The troops are to be mustered on, or as near as may be to, the 24th day of June, and the 24th day of December in every year; and the commissary general of musters is required to transmit the muster rolls to the offices of the secretary at war, of the pay-master-general of his Majesty's forces, and the comptrollers of the army accounts, on or before the 29th of September and 1st of May, following the said musters respectively.

Of Mustering the Army.

By a circular letter, dated War-Office, 3d October, 1785, an entire new mode of mustering the army was established by his Majesty's Orders.

Instead of mustering each troop or company separately, it is now done regimentally, and alphabetically upon one sheet of paper, or two sheets joined together.

Unless the names of all officers and privates are inserted in the muster roll of the period, with the respective dates, they will not be allowed pay, the rolls being the only vouchers in settling the public accounts.

The commissaries of musters are required to specify the dates of attestations of all recruits, in the rolls, and to inspect the attestations themfelves.

The muster-rolls are authenticated by a certificate, signed by the commanding-officer, the adjutant, and pay-master, and by an assidavit made by the commissary. These certificates and assidavits to be inserted in each of the rolls.

Detachments are to be certified for, by the commanding officer, adjutant, and pay-master; and such certificate must be included in the arrangement specified in the muster-roll. In whatever district a detachment may be, the commissary of that district will muster it, and have a roll thereof, properly certified and attested, which roll is to be returned by him.*

It is of the utmost importance to a regiment to be regularly mustered, and much inconvenience has arisen, during the present war, from its not having been attended to. It may sometimes be the fault of the commanding officer, but more

ing an abendance

^{*} For the form of mustering, see Rules and Orders for the embodied Militia and Fencible Infantry, published by the War Office.

generally arises from the absolute impossibility of effecting a muster on the present system. In time of war, or when a regiment is not likely to be long stationary, every commissary of musters should be authorised to muster in any district, and to obey the call of any commanding officer for that purpose within a given time.

Without a regulation on this principle, half the army will never be mustered in time of war, when it is most necessary; and commissaries of musters can afford but partial services to their country.

Of Regimental Accounts.

Regimental accounts are made up half-yearly, from the 25th of December in every year, to the 24th of June, and from the 25th of June to the 24th of December. These accounts must be transmitted to the agents of regiments, within three months after the expiration of each period, and must contain states of disbursements only, and the commanding officer, adjutant, and paymaster will sign them upon honour.

Every two months, states of the distribution, and receipts, must be sent to the agent, with such vouchers and accounts as he may require. The accounts which a pay-mafter transmits every 2 months to the agent, are not confidered as vouchers for the public.

He states in his distribution the subfishence of the men, particularifing the broken periods for that muster; what he has paid to each officer, and the amount of each account of any extra allowances difburfed; he gives credit for the bills he has drawn, and any payments the agent informs him he has made, either on account of officers individually, or the regiment at large. A distribution is therefore nothing else but an account current for 2 months, between the paymafter and agent. The return of pay for the men, which government requires every half year, should be made from the muster-roll; and if the pay master has been accurate, the amount of this general account will correspond with that of the fubfistence, charged in the 3 distributions for the foregoing 6 months.

But without a muster roll a young pay-master will be lost in confusion; it will be his interest to direct the adjutant to form one every half year, whether there be a commissary to certify it or not: if he should affist himself it would amply repay his labour, by the facility and certainty all his accounts for that period can be

If a pay mafter has made up his general return of pay, and been under the necessity of tracing casualties for a by-gone period, either in a regimental book or from his company's abstracts, and has, for a subsequent period, a regular muster-roll to guide him, he will then feel the force of the foregoing observation; and may with justice apply this beautiful image of a departed philosopher: "Veluti viatori, ignota regione, perditis viæ vestigiis, in umbra noctis erranti, per obscura quædam, quasi prima diurna, lux demum adsulsit."

Within three months after the 24th of December annually, the agent is to give in to the fecretary at war, all these accounts, with a state of his own disbursements, and vouchers for the same.

The following are Tables of the full pay, subsistence and arrears of the different ranks of officers, together with the full pay and subsistence of the non-commissioned officers and privates.

Officers are frequently at a loss to know at what period government will order their arrears to be iffued. The general rule is, that no arrears are iffued, till the regimental accounts for the year are given in and passed by the War Office. The delay is, therefore, oftener the fault of the regiment itself, than of the War Office, either by not giving in their accounts regularly to the agent, or giving them in such a state as to be almost incomprehensible.

Last year government very generously gave orders to issue the arrears of such officers as were going on foreign service with their regiment, to the 24th of December 1794, but did not grant the same indulgence to officers stationed at home. It is to be hoped they will continue this accommodation to officers who expose their health in foreign climates for the service of their country.

The work and a will have been assured

Of the Purchase and Sale of Commissions.

THE British Service is the only one in Europe, where the purchase or sale of commissions is universal, and founded on any regular and fixed principles. This practice, from the most slender, and almost imperceptible beginnings had, through connivance alone, grown to fuch a head, and had become liable to fo many. abuses, that it was thought necessary to reform and regulate it by royal authority. His Majesty, therefore, by a warrant in the year 1765, ordered a board of general officers to take this matter into their confideration, and to report to him what they thought an adequate price for the feveral ranks in the different fervices of the army. - The board having accordingly met, formed an estimate (according to the prices hereafter specified) which his Majesty was pleased to approve, and ordered it to be observed by all colonels, agents, and other military officers, under pain of his highest displeasure.

It was determined by the board, that the fame price should obtain in the respective corps, whether serving in or out of Europe; and that if any deficiency should arise, by the commissions of cornet, ensign, or second lieutenant not producing the price allowed by the said estimate, the loss should be sustained by the officer, who obtains leave to fell.

The general grounds on which the board proceeded in fixing the prices of the feveral commissions, was, by considering the value of the pay and rank diffinctly; and, after fixing what appeared to them a reasonable price for the commissions of cornet and ensign in the respective corps, and which they might probably be fold for in time of war as well as peace, proceded to estimate every increase of pay, after the rate of 100l. for each shilling per diem, in a general view, not attending minutely to fractional fums; and, in the next place, endeavoured to fix a proportionate value upon each advancement in rank, fuch as might, if possible, be extended to all the different corps. Thus the valuation of rank in the cavalry is, for gaining the rank of lieutenant (from a cornetcy) sol.; for a captainlieutenantcy 250l.; for the rank of captain 450l. (or in corps where there is no captain lieutenant, and the promotion from lieutenant to captain is made in one step, 700l.) for a majority 600l. and for the rank of lieutenant colonel 700l. The same valuation of rank is also extended to the foot service, except in the single commission of captain; wherein the board has in some degree conformed to the difference, which has ever prevailed in the price and reputed value, between a troop in the cavalry and a company in the foot; and has valued the advancement from lieutenant to captain, including the captain-lieutenantey, nearly at 400l.

Since this valuation of the board, an alteration has taken place in the price of the captain-lieutenantcy, his Majesty having granted in 1772 the rank of sull captain to all the captain-lieutenants of the army; so that the value of a captain-lieutenantcy in the foot, which was then fixed by the board at 8001. is now raised, upon the principles they laid down, to 9501.; in the dragoons from 14001. to 21001. and in the cavalry from 20001. to 24501. It is to be observed, that though his Majesty approved the estimate of the board, yet he has only ordered, that those prices be not exceeded; and a smaller price, though not a larger one, may be agreed upon betwixt the purchaser and the seller. The particular price for which any commission is to be sold, must be mentioned in the memorial of the person who desires leave to sell. This rule, however, may be evaded by a private agreement among the parties, where the buyer is the first for purchase.

The general rule in the army is, for those officers only to be allowed to fell, who have purchased their commissions, which is notwithstanding frequently dispensed with, in favour of officers who have been disabled, or worn out in the service.

Whenever a officer defires leave to fell his commission, he is to draw up a memorial stating the grounds on which he forms his expectations of getting that permission; and in that case, disclaiming all pretensions to half-pay, pension, or other reward for his past military services.—

There are forms for these memorials always lying at the office of the adjutant-general.

If such memorialist be with his regiment, he is to deliver his memorial to the officer commanding; and it is by him to be transmitted to the colonel, (if within the kingdom) whose approbation must be obtained before it is laid before his Majesty. But, in the absence of the colonel, the lieutenant-colonel is to transmit it to the War office, certifying under his hand the truth of the facts therein contained, as far as his knowledge or belief may extend.

In North America these memorials are to be transmitted, with the commanding officer's certificate, to the commander in chief; in Gibraltar or other garrisons abroad, to the governor or commander for the time being on those stations: but a duplicate must always be sent to the colonel of the regiment.

Of the Commissions in the Militia.

THE Lords Lieutenants of each county are appointed by the king, and have the chief command of the militia in their respective counties.

In 1786, an act of parliament was made for amending and reducing into one the Militia Laws of England. By virtue of this act the lieutehants of counties appointed by his Majesty are to nominate twenty deputy lieutenants (three of whom may act, when the lieutenant is out of the kingdom) together with officers duly qualified to command the militia of the county. They are, within fourteen days after the appointment of officers, to certify their names and rank, and in case his Majesty does not fignify his difapprobation of any of them, their commissions are then to be made out, and are not revocable on the death of the grantor. These officers are to rank with the officers of fuch of his Majesty's forces as are liable to ferve out of Britain, as youngest of their rank.

Qualifications.

THE qualification for a deputy-lieutenant is an estate of 200l. a year in possession, or the reversion of one of double that value. A colonel to be in possession of an estate of 10001. a year, or heir apparent to one of 2000l.; a lieutenant colonel to have an estate of 600l. a year. or be heir to one of 1200l.; a major or captain to be in possession of 2001. a year, or heir to 4001. a year, or younger fon of fome person, who is, or was at the time of his death, possessed of an estate of 600l. a year; a lieutenant to have a real estate of sol. a year, or a personal estate alone of 1000l. value, or real and personal estate together to the value of 2000l. or elfe to be fon of a person who is, or was at the time of his death, in possession of an estate of the yearly value of rool. or a personal estate alone to the amount of 2000l. or real and perfonal together to the amount of 3000l.; an enfign to have a real estate of 201. a year, or a personal estate alone of gool, value, or real and personal together to the amount of 1000l. or else to be son of a perfon, who is, or was at the time of his death poffeffed fessed of a real estate of 50l. a year, or a personal estate alone to the amount of 1000l. or real and personal together to the amount of 1500l. Of which estates, required as qualifications for deputy lieutenants, colonels, lieutenant-colonels, majors, captains, lieutenants and ensigns, one moiety is to be situate within the respective counties, ridings, or divisions, in which they are appointed to serve.

The qualifications for officers in the counties of Cumberland, Huntingdon, Monmouth, West-moreland and Rutland, are in the following proportions: a deputy lieutenant 150l. a year; a colonel 600l.; a lieutenant-colonel or major commandant 400l.; a major or captain 150l.; a lieutenant 30l.; and an ensign 20l. or 300l. perfonal property. The regulations are nearly the same with regard to cities that are counties within themselves; and in the Isle of Ely the qualifications are still smaller, a captain being duly qualified there by an estate of 100l. a year.

Leases on lives of 3001. per annum are to be deemed equal to a qualification of 1001. a year, and so proportionably. Estates granted for 20 years of an annual value equal to those required to qualify by this act, are allowed as fufficient

No commission superior to that of a lieutenant is to be granted till the qualification is delivered in; and the officers are required to take the oaths within six months after their appointment. The names and rank of the several officers, together with their qualifications, are to be inserted in the London Gazette, and annually laid by the secretary of state before parliament.

The penalty on fuch as act without a due qualification, is 2001. for every deputy lieutenant or field officer; 1001. for every captain fo offending; half of which goes to the person that sues, and the proof of the qualification lies on him against whom the action is brought. This, however, is not to prevent peers of the realm, or their heirs-apparent, from acting as deputy lieutenants, field officers, or captains, without any qualification.

Militia officers ferving in time of actual invafion or rebellion, may, on account of their military merits, be promoted by the lord lieutenant to the rank of captain, without the qualifiation required by the act.

Of the Allowances in Barracks, Camp, and Quarters.

THE allowances to troops, beyond the gross pay in the pay-office, come under the head of extraordinaries of the army. Such are the expences for barracks, marches, encampments, &c.

Of the Allowances in Barracks.

IN 1794 his Majesty was pleased to regulate the barrack allowances upon a new plan, and appointed a barrack-master general to superintend the barracks in Great Britain.

By the warrant issued upon that occasion, every barrack-master, on troops arriving in barracks, delivers up to the commanding officer the number of rooms necessary, with an inventory of the furniture and utenfils, stating the condition thereof.

thereof. Two copies of this inventory figned by the commanding officer are given to the barrack-master, one of which he transmits to the barrack-master general.

The barrack-master cannot change any article unless it is certified by the commanding officer as unfit for farther use; and all certificates must be sent to the barrack-master general, as vouchers for the delivery of what is required.

Once a month the barrack rooms and furniture must be inspected by the commanding officer and barrack-mafter. All damage, making allowance for wear and tear, to be estimated by the barrack-master, and the amount of what sum is necessary to make good the fame, laid before the commanding officer; if it is not immediately paid, the demand must be verified by the barrack-mafter's affidavit, fent to the barrack-mafter general, who is to transmit a copy thereof to the commanding officer, and require an immediate answer. Should it appear that injury has been done to the barracks or furniture, the barrack-mafter general certifies the amount of the repairs to the fecretary at war, that the regiment may be charged with it. But if the demand is not made by the barrack-master immediately mediately after the inspection, the damages to be made good by him.

On the first of every month the commanding officer must transmit to the barrack-master general, a return of the number of officers and men stationed in the barrack for the preceding month, and the barrack-master is to send a weekly return of the officers and men to whom stores have been issued.

Half-yearly accounts up to 24th June and 24th December, with general returns of the receipts and iffues, to be fent to the barrack-mafter general, within fourteen days after the above periods, that they may be examined and fettled without delay.

Every barrack-master must, when a regiment or detachment marches in or out of barracks, report to the barrack-master general, specifying the regiment or detachment, the commanding officer's name, and the number of officers and privates.

Once in three months, viz. 25th March, 24th June, 23d September, and 24th December, the barrack-master must send a return of the state of the barracks, furniture, and utensils, both in use and in store, specifying the condition they are in, and what number of rooms have been occupied during the three months preceding. The commanding officer must countersign these returns.

All deliveries of firing and candles to be vouched by certificates as well as by accurate returns, under the hand of the commanding officer, and transmitted along with the accounts.

If the barrack-master neglects any part of his duty, the commanding officer must report the same to the barrack-master general, who is authorized to send down an inspector to take possession of the barracks, till matters are settled, and the expence of the inspector to be charged to the barrack-master's account, and stopped out of his pay.

On the arrival of a regiment in barracks, the non-commissioned officers and privates are supplied by the barrack-master with one pair of clean sheets to each bed, for which three pence per pair must be paid for a double bed, and two-pence per pair for a single bed, and the same every month when they are changed, for the washing. To every room the following articles are given: bedsteads, mattresses, palliasses, bol-sters, blankets, sheets, rugs, round towel, table, racks racks for arms, fire irons, iron pots, pot-hooks, iron trivets, ladles, flesh-fork, frying-pan, gridiron, large bowls or platters, small bowls or porringers, trenchers, spoons, water bucket, coal tray, bellows, candlestick, tin can of three gallons, large earthen pan for meat, basket for coals, drinking horns, earthen chamber pots, broom and mop.

The rooms for the quarter masters and serjeants of cavalry, and the serjeant-major and quarter-master serjeant, are surnished in the same manner as the soldiers.

Officers rooms are furnished with a table, two chairs, a coal box, coal tray, bellows, fire-irons, and fender.

The following table will shew the proportion of rooms for officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates of cavalry and infantry.

When there are a fufficient number of rooms in a barrack, fubalterns of infantry may have one each, and the full allowance of coals and candles.

January, February and March, every cavalry room has weekly, 3\frac{1}{2}bushels of coals, and 2\frac{1}{2}pounds of candles. The same quantity of coals to the infantry, but only 1\frac{1}{2}pound of candles.

During April, September, and October, 2 bushels of coals and 2 pounds of candles are issued to the cavalry. To the infantry the coals are the same, with 1 pound of candles.

In May, June, July, and August, the cavalry have 12 bushels of coals and 12 pound of candles. The like quantity of coals to the infantry, with three quanters of a pound of candles.

For a commissioned officer's guard, 7 bushels of coals, and 4 pounds of candles, are issued weekly from 1st September to 1st May. A non-commissioned officer's guard has half the above for the same period.

For these rations 81d. per diem is stopped.

The ration of forage for each horfe, is, 18lb. of hay, 6lb. of straw, and 8lb. of oats, at 40lb. to the bushel, per diem.

Each stable is furnished with 2 pitchforks, 2 shovels, 1 lantern, 1 wheelbarrow, 2 water G buckets, buckets, and 4 brooms. The latter are received every month.

To all non-commissioned officers and soldiers effective in barrack, 5 pints of small beer are allowed daily.

Allowance in Quarters.

1. COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.

IN England officers are billeted on inn-keepers only, all private houses having having been exempted, by an Act of Parliament, passed in the reign of K. Charles II.

In Scotland they are billeted on houses in general, conformably to the laws in force at the Union, and are exempted paying money to the possessor of such houses for their lodging, except in the suburbs of Edinburgh.

Neither the Act above referred to, nor the Mutiny Act, express in a definite manner the quarters which publicans are to furnish the officers, and therefore there are frequent disputes between them and their landlords, which can only be settled by the justices of the peace, according to the spirit of the Act, to the best of their their judgment. No certain rule being laid down, they must go upon the ground of analogy.

By examining what officers are entitled to inbarracks, it will appear that a captain should be provided, in virtue of his billet, with a proper room to himself; and that a single room with two beds will suffice for two subalterns or staff officers.

But a circumstance to be considered likewise, is the means or ability of the person quartered on.

Field officers and captains have no other claim on publicans on whom they are quartered, but their lodging, fire, and candle; neither are their horses billeted.

Subaltern officers, both of dragoons and infantry, are entitled to have their horses provided with stabling, and hay and straw. The Mutiny Act allows only 6d. per diem to the inn-keeper for every horse so furnished; but the late Act for the Relief of Inn-keepers allows an additional 4½d. per diem for each officer's horse billeted; the former 6d. is paid by the officer, and the 4½d. is charged to government by the regimental pay-master. Subaltern officers of dragoons and foot, in terms of the Mutiny Act, are entitled also to diet and small beer for 1s. per diem, and subaltern officers of horse for 2s. per diem.

There are fituations in which officers are allowed lodging money; but this is never the case but in barrack towns, and under circumstances where they cannot be accommodated in the barracks, nor be provided with billets. As this is an expence incurred in the department of the barrack-master general, he has fixed the following allowances for lodging.

The rates for each rank are: field officers 10s. 6d. per week; captains, 8s. per week; fubalterns and staff, 6s. per week. The pay-master is to transmit every two months to the agent, a return of lodging money certified in the following manner;

- 1. The barrack-master of the place is to certify that the officers could not be supplied with requisite apartments in the barracks.
- 2. The resident assistant quarter-master general of the district, or other competent officer in the suite of the general commanding, is to certify that billets could not be procured for the officers specified in the returns.
 - 3. The commanding officer of the corps is to certify certify that the officers specified were present, and did provide themselves with lodgings.

4. The general commanding in the district is to confirm by his signature the above declarations.

Lodging money is paid by the barrack office to the agents of regiments by a bill at 30 days fight; but unless the return has every one of the above mentioned certificates it will not be admitted, and of course the money cannot be received.

2. Non-commissioned Officers and Privates.

By certain clauses in the Mutiny Act, they are to be provided with proper lodging, fire, and candle, and furnished with diet and small beer by the publican; those of the cavalry for 6d. per diem each, and those of the infantry for 4d. per diem. But this the foldiers could only insist upon when on a march; or when recruiting, for the space of seven days after halting at any quarters: at the expiration of which the landlord was exempted from the necessity of sinding them in diet, on condition of furnishing them with candles, vinegar, and falt, and either small beer or cyder, not exceeding 5 pints for each man per diem gratis; together with the use of fire, and the necessary utensils for dressing and eating their meat. The horses are likewise to be billeted, paying the publican for hay and straw at the rate expressed in the A&, of 6d. per diem for each horse. But the A& for the Relief of Inn-keepers, which took place on the 20th May 1795, alters very considerably the situation of the publican with respect to the non-commissioned officers and privates.

When the men are stationary in quarters, it is in the option of the inn-keeper to victual them or not. If he gives them diet and small beer, he receives fix-pence per diem from those of cavalry, and four-pence per diem from the infantry, to be paid him out of the subsistence of the men.

But when the men are on a march, the publican is obliged by this act to furnish them with diet or beer, for the day of their arrival, either at their final destination, or at an intermediate place, and for two days subsequent, unless one of the two subsequent days be a market day, either in the town or within 2 miles thereof; in which case the publican may discontinue to vic-tual them. On the days the Act obliges the inn-keeper to victual them, government allows an extra rate of four-pence per diem for the cavalry, and fix-pence per diem for the infantry, which added to the old rates of fix-pence for the cavalry and four-pence for infantry, make 1cd. per diem for the publican from each man.

This additional or extra rate of 4d. for the cavalry, and 6d. for the infantry, is called Marching Money or Billet Money.

In every case where the publican does not diet the men, he must furnish them with candles, vinegar, salt, and small beer or cyder; and in the place of doing so gratis, as formerly, government now allows him two-pence per diem for each man so surnished. This allowance is termed Beer Money.

Recruiting parties, and their recruits, are precifely on the fame footing with the publicans as all other parties of foldiers are: but if a recruiting party and their recruits shall remove from their station and return again within 28 days, they are not entitled to be supplied for 2 days with diet and beer by the publican at the old rates; but if the period of absence exceed 28 days, then they may claim the 2 days diet as above specified in terms of the Act.

The subsistence of every troop horse is 9d. per diem, and the distribution of it as follows: 6d. per day to the inn-keeper for hay and straw, 2½d. per day in aid of oats, ½d. per day for the farrier.

In order that the quantity of 8lbs. of oats may be furnished the horses, government pays the difference of price above the 2½d.

This forms what is called the Extra Feeding Account of the cavalry, and is only allowed when horses are in quarters. This allowance is also extended to a certain number of officers horses. viz. 4 for a field officer; 3 for a captain; 2 for a subaltern or staff officer; and 1 for a quarter-master.

The effective horses are stated at 8lbs. of oats per day—the number of pounds divided by 40, gives the quantity in bushels, which is reduced to quarters, &c. and the price paid per quarter being given, the amount of the whole is set down, from which is deducted 2½d. per diem for every horse charged in the account, including the officers horses according to the number allowed and specified above.

Troop horses, and those of officers entitled to billets, were furnished with hay and straw, in terms of the old Act, at 6d. per diem each, which was stopped out of the 9d. per diem, allowed for the subsistence of the horse; but in consideration of the advanced price of these articles, government now allows, pursuant to the Act for the Relief of Inn-keepeers, 4½d. per diem for every horse so furnished, in addition to the former six-pence, whether stationary in quarters, or on a march, so that the inn-keeper has now 10½d. per diem for every horse supplied with hay and straw.

By a warrant of his Majesty's, issued during the prefent War, the following distribution of a private Dragoon's Pay is ordered:

The necessary money is issued half yearly, according to the establishment, immediately after the 24th of June; but on or immediately after the 24th of December, an account from each regiment must be made, stating the whole demand for the year, and giving credit for the money already received. The agent delivers this account into the War-office, who receives the balance wanting to complete the allowances for the effective number.

Should it so happen that any of the articles included in the expenditure of the 3l. 18s. 7½d. are not wanted, the money in that case to be accounted for at the end of the year.

Independent of the above allowances, there are others, fuch as,

- 1. For brushes, pickers, turn-screws, worms, brick-dust, emery, and oil. The actual expenditure of these articles to be certified for upon honour by the colonel or commanding officer, provided it does not in any half year exceed 1s. $4\frac{1}{2}$ d. per man of each effective rank and file. The account to be transmitted through the war office to the office of ordnance, where the allowance is paid to the agents of regiments.
- 2. For watch-coats for fentries, at the proportion of 6d. per man, half yearly, including non-commission officers. To be charged in the annual accounts of the regiment. The watch coats to be provided when wanted. This allowance is granted for the full establishment of non-commissioned officers and privates.

The foregoing allowances, old and new, for necessaries, as also the bread money, are now consolidated into one rate, which is iffued monthly, with the soldier's subsistence, and for which he is to be accounted with in the same manner as for his pay.

The allowances for cleaning arms, and for furnishing watch coats, are not included in the consolidation of allowances, but are charged by regiments of infantry in the same manner as before; the reason is, these two allowances are considered as regimental, and from which the soldier never derived any personal emolument; therefore could not, on any just principle, be comprehended with the others.

Vide an abstract of the Consolidation Warrant in the appendix to this work.

In addition to the above allowances, government has, fince the high price of provisions, granted to the non-commissioned officers and privates of cavalry and infantry, an allowance on the purchase of their bread and meat.

Formerly the foldier had a fix pound loaf of bread every 4 days, or a pound and a half of bread per diem, for which he paid when in camp, only 5d. per loaf, and the rest was charged to government by the contractors. Orders were given afterwards that men in quarters should have bread on the same terms as in camp.

During the great fcarcity and high price of wheat, government deemed it proper that the foldiers should have their allowance of bread retrenched to one pound per diem, or a four pound loaf every four days, and that the value of the half pound of bread thus retrenched should be laid out in the purchase of vegetables, or any other nourishing article of food. The pay-master forms a contract for the bread and pays whatever is the market price. The deliveries are every four days ;- the foldier pays 5d. per loaf; and whatever more it may have cost, the paymafter charges in his bread account to government. He also charges, in this bread account, the amount of the half pound retrenched per diem, at the same rate the four pound loaf is publickly fold.

on as good terms as possible. The quantity of meat to be thus delivered is not exactly fixed; in general the delivery runs from four to five pounds per week.

These accounts of bread and meat are to be made out every two months, stating the number of effectives present, the days of delivery, market price of the articles and difference, after the usual stoppage from the men that is charged to government.

In addition to these accommodations, government has thought proper to raise the pay of the subaltern officers and privates, so as to render their situation comfortable in every respect. The particulars of such advance may be seen in the Appendix to this work.

Returns of this duty must be made up after the 24th of June and December, for the half year preceding, and transmitted to the war office that the same be paid. The form of these returns must express the dates of routes, number of deserters, where and from whom received, where and to whom delivered, and the strength of parties.

The cavalry when efcorting deferters have the fame allowances as the infantry.

The commanding officer of any detachment receiving orders to fend an efcort with a deferter, is to advance an adequate fum of money on account of pay, as the probable time of his confinement in gaol and march to his final destination may require. Such necessaries as he may also stand absolutely in need of are also to be provided.

provided. The different sums of money thus advanced are to be particularized on the back of the Route.—The commanding officer, or his adjutant or pay-master, by his direction, are to fign their names on the back of the route.

When the deferter is handed over, either to the gaoler or to another party, the party receiving him is to certify the balance of money they receive with him.

The distribution of the money is to be stated on the back of the route, and if any improper charges appear, the non-commissioned officer, under whose care they were contracted, must make good the amount thereof.

The agent of the regiment to which the deferter belongs, is to repay the money advanced, provided he fees the route, and is fatisfied that the money is fairly accounted for.

The agent is to charge the money in the following manner.

Six-pence a day fubfishence against the public in his contingent account.

Necessaries and handcuffs against the deserter to be paid for by stoppages.

Medicines, and expences on account of fick-ness, to be charged against the surgeon of the regiment.

For the apprehending deferters the Mutiny Act allows twenty shillings for each, to be paid by the collector of the land-tax, on producing to him a justice of the peace warrant to that effect.

The baggage and forage allowance is what officers of the army call tent money. The first table for 1793, is that which regulates the home encampments. Regiments of cavalry on taking the field have no baggage and forage allowed them, but their field officers and captains have an allowance of 181 18s. to purchase a horse, and the fubalterns and staff an allowance for one between every two of them.

The furgeon has befides an allowance for one horse for his medicine cheft.

The infantry have fometimes but not uniformly an allowance per company of two horses while on foreign flations, viz. bat and blanket horfes. The common charge for tents is as follows: A field officer's marquée and tent, &c. £20 0 0

WHEN corps are employed on fatigues which are not purely of a military nature, or a conftant and regular part of their duty, such as digging canals, repairing roads, working on fortifications, except such as may be constructed in the field, or upon actual service, they are commonly allowed some addition to their pay, as a reward for their labour, and a compensation for their extraordinary wear of necessaries: * half of which should always be paid into the hands of the captains, and commanding officers of companies, for this latter purpose.

When employed in making and repairing the roads in North-Britain, the subaltern officers and soldiers were allowed double pay; but the captains received nothing additional. The same rule still holds good with regard to the captains; and the rates for the inferior officers and sol-

A late fecretary at war remarked, in one of his official letters, that there are but too few comfortable retreats from active fervice for the yeteran officer in this country. The only provision that the establishment affords for them are, the commissions in the corps of invalids, (which are not in proportion to the strength of the army, and the military governments.)

It is this circumstance that originally gave rife to the sale of commissions, which has grown so prejudicial to the service. Yet, however injurious that practice may be to the army in general, there is another method of providing for veteran officers, though at present much discontinued, which proves infinitely more so to the particular corps, in which it is suffered to take place: viz. the going out upon full-pay. In this case, if it is the lieutenant-colonel that retires, the person, who succeeds him in the commission of lieutenant-colonel, receives only the pay of major; the major serves on captain's pay, the youngest captain on that of lieutenant, the youngest lieufign without any pay. But when an officer retires in this manner it must be with the universal consent and recommendation of the corps.

Officers wounded in the service are entitled to his Majesty's bounty, by a warrant issued at the commencement of the late war—viz.

If a wound fhould be received in action by any commission officer, which shall occasion the loss of an eye or limb, or the total loss of the use of a limb, he shall receive a gratuity in money, equal to one year's full-pay; and further be allowed fuch expence relating to his cure, if not performed at the king's charge, as shall be certified to be reasonable by the surgeon general of the army, and inspector-general of the royal infirmary, upon examination of the vouchers, which he shall lay before them. If the wound received should not amount to the loss of a limb, the charge of cure only fhall be allowed, certified as above. When any commissioned officer shall lose an eye or limb, as aforefaid, the commanding officer of the corps in which he ferves, shall deliver to him a certificate, specifying the time when, and the place where, the faid accident happened; a duplicate of which certificate certificate shall be fent with the next monthly return.

"When any commission officer shall be killed in action, his widow and orphan children, if he leaves any, shall be allowed as follows:

"To the widow, a full year's pay, according to her husband's regimental commission.

"To each child under age, or not married, one-third of what is allowed to the widow. Posthumous children to be excluded.

"All persons dying of their wounds within fix months after battle, shall be deemed flain in action.

"The commanding officer of the corps, in which the flain officer ferved, shall, on demand, give a certificate of his having been killed in action, to his surviving wife and orphans; respectively specifying the time when, and the place where such accident happened; a duplicate of which certificate shall likewise be sent with the next monthly return."

Allowances to discharged Men.

WHEN men are discharged, and not recommended to Chelsea Hospital, they have the sollowing allowances to carry them home.

To any part of England, 14 days subsistence.

When discharged in England, to any part of Scotland 21 days subsistence.

To any part of Ireland, 28 days fubfiftence.

The allowance to a rejected recruit is regulated by the distance he is at from the place of his enlistment. If not exceeding 40 miles he has 4 days pay; and in the same proportion to 100 miles; for distances exceeding 100 miles he is to get the same allowance as before stated for discharged soldiers.

Extract from the Report of a Committee, appointed to enquire into the State of the Army, 1746.

TPON a late enquiry by a committee appointed to confider the state of his Majefty's land-forces and marines, fo far as relates to the distribution of the money granted by parliament for the pay, to the number of effective men, and the methods of mustering and recruiting, it appeared that the charge of the 4 troops of horse-guards, and the 2 troops of grenadier guards, is no greater than heretofore, but that regiments of horse, 10 of dragoons, 3 of foot guards and 30 battalions of foot, employed on the British establishment for the year 1745, con the nation, 9999411. 16s. 8d. whereas the fame number of forces, divided as they are now are would have coft at the peace of Utrecht, only 8710421. 1s. 8d. fo that the charge is increased 1288991. 15s.

dragoons every two years, and the horse and grenadier guards every three years. It appeared alfo, that the clothing fund arises from the ftoppage of fo much of the pay of the non-commission-officers and private men, as is above their fublishence, and is called off-reckonings. The off-reckonings from June, 1740, to June 1743, for the first troop of horse grenadier guards, amounted to 28231. 58. 9d: the payments for clothes in that time amounted to no more than 1046l. 28. 13d. The balance, therefore, appears to be 8871. 3s. 71d. out of which, the colonel having provided feveral other necessaries not particularly specified, but alledged to amount to about 300l. a gain of above 50cl. clear accrued to him by the neat furplus.

^{*} Here it may not be improper to remark, that the full pay of a common foot foldier in a marching regiment is 8d. per diem; out of which 2d. is stopped for clothes, &c. and 6d. remains for his subsistence; out of which subsistence, ence,

Out of which balance, the colonel to find all forts of clothing and accourrements loft by defertion, and other incidental charges, which in fome years are confiderable.

However it appeared, that upwards of 5781. had been faved by a colonel, after clothing his regiment: but a clothier being asked whether, in general, the colonel of a regiment does not gain 7501. by clothing it, said, he was certain that he did not.

The committee proceeding to enquire into the nature of the fund appropriated to the clothing, it appeared that the gross off-reckonings consist of all the pay of the non-commission officers and private men above the subsistence; and that the nett off-reckonings are the produce of the gross off-reckonings, reserved for the clothing of the men, after the warrant deduction of 1s. in the pound, and one day's pay of the whole regiment for Chelsea Hospital, and also the deduction of 2d. in the pound for the agent, are made at the pay office. over and above their fublishence, after the warrant deductions are made, and the respited pay if there is any, is charged to the officer, is called clearings, which is paid by the pay-master general to the different agents.

It appeared also, that this balance is not paid to the colonels till a year or two after the clothing is provided. That it is usually the custom for the colonel to affign the whole of the offreckonings to the clothier for his fecurity, or else to pay ready money; and that in the former case, the clothier is allowed interest for forbearance. That the fubfiftence of the men allowed for clothing loft by defertion is paid to the respective colonels, the off-reckonings only being included in the affignment; and that there are feveral other articles of expence defrayed out of the clothing fund, as the charge of package, of carriage by land or water, of infurance when fent abroad, of interest, more or less, as the offreckonings are paid, of fees of offices, of small accoutrements, colours, drums, and other contingent charges.

The clothing to be furnished by the colonels were found to be as follows.

This estimate * was taken from the examination of the agent to Sir John Ligonier's regiment of horse, and for a time of war, when more clothes are required than in time of peace. in case of battle, when the whole clothing and accoutrements are loft, it will coft 171. 3s. 10d. to equip another man.

Several other estimates were laid before the committee, which tended to prove, that the colonels gained little or nothing by the clothing; which, however, must certainly have been falacions: for it is well known, that the colonels of horse and dragoons gain, at least, from gool, to 800l. by the clothing,

This estimate is for the full establishment, including the contingent men, for whom clothing is not furnished, though the colonel receives the off-reckonings for them, the subsistence being paid to the captains of companies towards the repair of arms. This will make an addition of 56l. 10s. to the balance of 211l. 17s 3d.; so that the clear surplus after all expences, to the colonel, is 268l. 7s. 3d. It is also to be observed, that it was calculated for a regiment on foreign service; for in time of peace it was allowed, that the expence of clothing a regiment of that strength would fall short of the above estimate, 191l. 8s. 6d; which will render the colonel's balance 459l. 15s. 9d.

It appeared also that there was an allowance from government, in case of new levies or augmentations, of about 30s. or 31s. per man, for extra clothing; and that the clothing of a new man amounted to 11. 17s. 10d. above the usual charge; he having double linen, double stockings, a waistcoat, a sword and leather accountements.

The committee then examined the agents of feveral regiments, as to the expence of clothing, compared with the total amount of the off-reckonings, when it appeared that the nett off-reckon-

Agents.

WITH regard to agents, it appeared, that their allowance confifts of a man per troop or company, and 2d. in the pound from the whole pay of the regiment; that the place of agent is fometimes a gift, but generally a purchase; that he is properly the colonel's clerk, and that it is at the colonel's option, whether he shall receive the whole, or any part of the agent's allowance, except the 2d. in the pound, being obliged to account to the colonel for the rest, if he thinks sit to reserve it for his own use.

THE allowance upon the establishment for musters appeared to be as follows:

To the commissary general of the musters, 4691. 7s. 6d. per annum; to one deputy commissary general 4191. 15s.; to six deputies in South-Britain 10951.; to one deputy in North-Britain 1821. 10s.; to one for Jersey and Guernsey 451. 12s. 6d.; to one in the island of Scilly 241. 6s. 8d.; and for two clerks to the commissary

That the pay of a deputy commissary was respect diem, subject to the deduction of 5 per cent, for poundage, 2½ per cent. for the civil list, one day's pay for Chelsea Hospital, and 2d. in the pound to the agent; the nett pay amounting to about 160l. per annum: besides which, that in general a gratuity of half a guinea was given by the captain of every company of foot, and a guinea by the captain of every troop of horse and dragoons at each muster in England; and a pistole for each troop, and half a guinea for each company abroad: but that this gratuity was sometimes resused when the troops were complete.

That each deputy commissary had his proper circuit, which he was to perform every two months; yet that often two, and sometimes three musters were taken together.

THAT when a widow applies for a pension, a certificate is required, figned by the colonel, and agent of the regiment, to which her hufband belonged; together with an affidavit of her own annexed; in which she swears that she is the real widow of the officer mentioned in the faid certificate. Whereupon the king grants a warrant, which is counterfigned by the fecretary at war, for the pension, agreeably to the regulation; and that when this is granted, the widow receives her penfion clear, and without deduction. That as often as the widows receive their penfions, they are obliged to make oath (except in a few instances, where the oath has been dispensed with) that they continue the widows of fuch officers, and that they have no provision or other pension from the government, either in Great Britain or Ireland: which oath is all that is required of them, if they come themselves; but that, if they empower any other persons by letters of attorney, to receive their pensions, those persons must bring a certificate from the minister and church-

That is, in the pound is deducted out of all the receipts on this fund (from the treasury) for the pay-master's salary, amounting one year with another, to 75cl. per annum; out of which 20cl. was usually paid to the under secretary at war, and 10cl. to the deputy pay-master.

That the whole annual fund is iffued to the pay-master, within the compass of 16 months; and that the payments are made every 4 months, after 8 are due, to those who demand them.

Of the Stock-Purfe, or non-effective Fund.

THE agent to the Duke of Montague's regiment of horse, being examined in relation to the disposal of the vacant pay of private men wanting to complete, informed the committee, that remains with the captain, and is applied, together with the pay of the two warrant men, to the recruiting fund, an account whereof is made up once a year; in which account credit is given on the one side for the vacant pay, and, on the other,

other, the expence of horses and men raised within the year is charged, and the balance, if there is any, is carried to the next year's account; but that, in time of fervice, the fund feldom answers the expence. That a general account is made up for the whole regiment, and then fubdivided to each troop; but that the exceedings in one troop are not applied to make good the deficiencies in another. That this account is made up by the agent, and delivered to each captain, after it has been shewn to the colonel, who inspects it, in order to see how each captain has recruited his troop; but that the colonel, as colonel, never meddles with the money arifing from this fund, further than to fee that it is proproperly disposed of; and this is not the colonel's personal account, but belongs to the regiment, to which the colonel is answerable.

That it feldom happens that the balance is confiderable, either for or against the captain, because the fund allowed for recruiting is calculated to answer the common casualties; but when by extraordinary calamities, which have sometimes happened, the loss has been so great, that it was not in the power of the captain to make it good out of his remounting fund, it was customary to represent the case to the king. who has ordered the deficiency to be made up. either by an allowance of a certain number of vacancies for a time specified, or (as is generally done in time of war) out of the fund for contingencies of the army. That the balance in favour of the captain fometimes amounts to between 40l. and 50l. for two or three years, and that it is not in the colonel's power to apply that balance towards making up deficiencies in another troop; that this balance, in time of peace, is fometimes paid to the captains by the colonel's order, when their troops have been completed; but when it is not paid to them, it is referved for future accidents. That he has known a balance paid to one captain, when the balance has been against the other captains of the same regiment; but that he never knew a balance paid to one captain when there was fo great a deficiency in other troops, that there has been a necessity to apply to the king; and believes the two cafes never happened together. Besides the two warrant men on the establishment, it appeared, that there is the pay of another vacant man allowed to each troop, and in some regiments two, towards the remounting fund.

The agent to Sir John Ligonier's regiment of horse being examined in relation to the fund for remounting and recruiting, informed the committee, that the subfiftence of one of the two vacant men, per troop, allowed in that regiment, is referved in the agents hands, towards the remounting fund, and added to the subfistence of the two warrant men upon the establishment; but that the subfiftence of the other vacant man is iffued to the captain with his own subfiftence, and no account of that comes to the agent. That the clerk of each troop keeps a particular account of the vacancies, both of private men and horses, and gives the same to the command. ing officer who delivers it to the pay-mafter; from whence a general account is transmitted to the agent. That the agent makes up an account annually with each captain of the expence of remounting and recruiting his troop; and if there there is a furplus in his favour, he fometimes receives it, and fometimes not, as the colonel pleafes; but that it is never paid without the colonel's orders. That if the captains decline taking the furplus, as they fometimes do, it is carried to the next year's account; but that the balance is as often against, as in favour of, the captains: that he believes the captains fometimes pay the balance, when it is against them; but that if there is a furplus in favour of the captain of one troop, and a great balance against the captain of another, the surplus of the former is not applied to make good the deficiencies of the latter.

With regard to the stock-purse, or remounting fund, in the several regiments of dragoons, it appeared that the subsistence of three men and horses is reserved for that service, besides the two warrant men allowed upon the establishment; and that the money is disposed of as in the cavalry. That the captains keep that account themselves, and that no vacant pay goes to the colonel, it being all appropriated to the fund of the stock-purse.

That in time of war, the pay of three vacant men is commonly allowed for recruiting, besides the two warrant men granted to each captain upon the establishment; but if any man is respited upon the muster-roll, then the two warrant men are both respited, there being in all establishments a warrant to respite those two men, when the company is not full.

Another agent being examined in relation to the flock-purse and recruiting accounts, informed the committe, that in the regiments of horse, those accounts are kept separately by each troop, but that, in the foot, the method of keeping the recruiting account varies; being fometimes a particular, and fometimes a general regimental account: and that to this account is carried the fubfistence of the two warrant men upon the establishment, and the vacant pay of non-effectives. That abroad, the commanding officer makes a return of the number of effective men to the commander in chief; whereby the number of non-effectives is afcertained; and thereupon the pay-mafter of the regiment is ordered to iffue fubfiftence to the captains for the effectives effectives only. That in some instances the paymafter keeps the vacant pay in his own hands, and, in others, he remits it to the agent, as a fund for recruiting; but that the usual method is, for the pay-maker at every muster to fend an account of the non-effectives in each troop or company to the agent here, who acquaints the pay-mafter general with the fums necessary to be fent abroad for fubfiftence, and carries the remainder to the recruiting fund. That, at home, the agent receives the whole subfishence of the regiment, and generally iffues it to the feveral captains, without keeping any account of non-effectives at all: fo that, in that cafe, there is no recruiting fund kept by the agents, but each captain recruits his own company, as he can, and receives the subfistence of his warrant men with that of the rest of the company. That when officers are fent out to recruit in general for the whole regiment, they draw for the money wanted upon the agent; and that each captain is debited, in proportion to the number of men he receives, and the balance paid to him annually.

It appeared also, that, in some regiments of foot, foot, the regimental pay-master keeps the account of non-effectives, and that, in others the money is stopped by the colonel in the hands of the pay master, and remitted back again to the agent.

Extract from the Report of the Commissioners of Public Accounts, relative to the Pay-master General. 1781.

THE public money in the hands of the paymaster-general is received by him, either from the exchequer or from the treasury of Ireland, when Irish regiments are drawn out of that kingdom, and in part paid by Great Britain; or from persons, who upon their accounts being settled, are directed by the king's warrant to pay the balance into his hands.

The present pay-master general has no money in his hands received from the treasury of Ireland; all the accounts of the Irish regiments being made up, and their whole pay now borne by Great Britain. The sum in his hands arising from balances directed to be paid to him, was, upon the 1st of February last, 84631. 10s. 4d. The exchequer is the great source from whence he draws his supply.

The supply for the army is granted by parliament to the king, and therefore no part of this supply can be issued from the exchequer, without the royal Sgn manual authorising such issue.

After

After the supply is granted, there comes from the treasury to the pay-office the king's fign manual, directing the lords of the treasury to iffue, to the pay-master general, a certain part of that supply (in time of war usually a million) by way of impreft and upon account, according to fuch warrants and orders, as either are, or shall be figned by the king. This fign manual, with the treafury warrant, and order of the auditor of the exchequer, made in pursuance of the fign manual, after being entered in the pay-office, are lodged at the exchequer, and give the pay-mafter general a credit there for the fum mentioned in those instruments. To obtain any part of this credit, the pay-mafter general presents a memorial to the treasury, specifying the sum he requires, and for what fervice. The treafury, by letter, direct the auditor of the exchequer to iffue that fum to the pay-master general, upon the unfatisfied order above mentioned. This letter being produced, and passing through the forms of office, he obtains from them the fum he wants. When the fum in this fign manual is exhausted, another fign manual with the confequential warrant and order is obtained, and renewed in the fame manner, from time to time, until there is occasion whole army supply for the year; when, instead of a fign manual, there comes a privy seal, directing the iffue of that remaining sum, and including, authorizing and confirming the whole supply of that year.

It was usual formerly for the pay-master general to apply to the treasury every four months, each time for a third part of the sum voted for the services of the army, under the general head of pay and subsistence for the forces at home and abroad; but since the year 1759, the practice has been to ask of the treasury, from time to time for the sums voted under distinct heads of service, and not until the time when the demands for the services are near approaching.

The fervices are ranged under two general heads, the ordinary and the extraordinary. The ordinary are those for which specific sums are annually voted by parliament; the extraordinary are those which, though not provided for by parliament, are nevertheless considered as necessary, and therefore paid, in consideree of their being provided for in the succeeding session.

As the fervice is diffinguished, so is the application for it to the treasury. Sums for the ordinary fervices are obtained upon the application of the pay-mafter general himself; those for the extraordinary are directed into his hands upon the application of others.

After the supply for the pay of the army is voted by parliament, the secretary at war sends to the pay-office, the sour establishments for the year, which are:

- 1. The guards, garrifons, and land forces.
- 2. The forces in the plantations, and the garrifons in North America and the West Indies.
- 3. The forces in Minorca, and garrison of Gibraltar.
- 4. The militia.

Together with the several regulations of the subsistence. The establishment contains the distribution of the whole sum voted, amongst the several regiments, corps, garrisons, officers and private men, by the day and by the year, and the gross sum allowed for each regiment, corps, and garrison. To each establishment are annexed two warrants; the one directing the paymaster general to make a deduction of twelve-pence in the pound out of all he shall issue, called the poundage, and specifying to what service it shall be applied, the other directing a deduction tion of one day's pay, out of the payments in the establishment, for the use of Chelsea Hospital.

The application by the pay-master general to the treasury for money is made under distinct heads of service; which may be comprehended under three heads.

- 2. Those for which the sum he receives, belonging to particular persons, remain in his posfession, upon account of the persons entitled, until they or their agents apply to him for payment.
- 3. Those for which a part only of the sum he receives is issued by him, soon after he receives it, and the remainder continues in his hands for any indefinite time.

Of the first class, where he soon issues all he receives, are the returned poundage; Chelsea-Hospital, and the out-pensioners; the subsistence of the forces in Jamaica and the East Indies, and of the non-commission officers and private men in Africa; the subsistence and clothing of the militia and invalids; the subsistence issued upon account; the stoppages of the officers; subsistence garrifons of Gibraltan and Minorca; the general and staff officers and garrifons in Great Britain; the nett off-reckonings; the allowances to the colonel, captain, and agent; the clearings; foreign substidies; arrears of the foreign troops; levy money, and all the extraordinaries. Under the head of substitutes of the forces at home, so much of the sum received, as the substitute actually amounts to, is issued to the agent as soon as he receives it.

Of the 2d class are, the reduced officers; and, under the several heads of the garrisons abroad, the general and staff officers, and hospitals; so much of the sums voted for these services, as is contained in each warrant for the pay of the officers named in the certificates, remains in his hands until those officers or their agents apply for it.

Of the 3d class, where he issues a part only of the sums he receives, are the subsistence of the forces at home; the subsistence of the non-commission officers and private men of the British forces in the West Indies and North America, and of the foreign troops; the garrisons abroad; and the general and staff-officers, and hospitals abroad. by the pay-mafter general from the exchequer, it appears that the balance in his hands * cannot confift of any fums comprehended in the first class; because of them he very soon issues all he receives: nor is it probable, that the sums in the second class can constitute any very considerable part of it, because it is not to be presumed, that officers of any denomination will suffer their pay to continue long without applying for it, either by themselves or their agents.

Under the denomination of subfishence for the forces at home, the pay-master general receives more than that subfishence amounts to with an intent of procuring thereby a fund for certain payments not specifically applied for by him, and therefore otherwise unprovided for. He receives fubfiftence upon the full establishment of the non-commission officers and private men of the British forces in North America, and part of the West Indies, and of the foreign troops; but as these regiments must be incomplete, and the deputy pay-mafters there iffue fubfiftence according to the ftrength only of the regiment, he does not remit to them the whole he receives, but fo much only, as from the last accounts they fend him of the state of the balances in their hands, he judges will be fufficient to enable them to carry on the public fervice. This uniffued fubfistence of the British forces in the West Indies and North America continues in his hands till the accounts of the feveral regiments are made up, when it falls into the clearings, and is iffued to the agents; but this is not till 15 or 16 months after they become due. The uniffued fubfiftence of the foreign troops remains with him till their arrears are paid to the agents; which time feems, from the account of the iffues received from the treasury, generally to be about two years after they are due.

In November 1781, the balance of public money in the hands of the pay-master-general was 447,1531. 115. 31d.; and his average monthly balance for seventeen months has been 869,1481.

He receives the whole sums voted for garri-fons, staff, and hospital abroad; but the officers in these departments, named in the certificates from the war-office, do not exhaust the whole sum voted.

Hence arises a fund composed of these savings, out of which he issues for certain services, and defrays certain expences, without making any specific application for them to the treasury. These are, the allowance to widows; some of the payments to which the poundage is made applicable by the king's warrants; and the mistellaneous heads of contingencies.

To demands for these services, and to no other (except such claims for the pay of the general and staff-officers, and officers of the garrisons and hospitals abroad, and of the reduced officers, as remained unsatisfied) was this balance liable on the day of its date. Nothing had been issued for the allowance to widows in the year 1780; for enough remained of former receipts in the hands of the pay-master of the widows pensions, to carry on that service; and therefore this balance was not liable to be reduced by any issue under the head of allowance to widows. The payments out of the poundage and hospital, and for the contingencies in the year the warrants had not been produced for payment, and therefore the accounts could not be made up, we must allow it then to be the same with that of the last year in which these accounts were made up at the office, which are of the year 1778.

The payments out of the poundage, and one day's pay, confift of falaries to officers, exchequer fees, returned poundage, and Chelfea hofpital; the whole amount of which for this one year is 114,26cl. 10s. 2d. The articles of exchequer fees, returned poundage, and Chelfea-Hospital, though placed to this account, are not demands upon this balance. The exchequer fees for every fum are always paid at the excheouer out of the fum, at the time it is received: the pay-mafter general debits his cash with the whole fum he applies for, and credits it for the fees; and therefore the only alteration made in his cash is an increase by the sum he asks, deducting the exchequer fees. The other two fervices being applied for under their specific heads, he receives the fum with one hand, and iffues it with the other; and therefore these three articles amounting to 97,9121. 78. 6d. being deducted from the total, leaves the fum of 16,353l. 2s. 8d. only, as a charge upon this balance; which fum, confifting chiefly of falaries, for the most part paid quarterly, soon after they become due, leaves claim to a very small account indeed to be fatisfied out of this balance.

The contingent expences confift of a variety of articles, amounting to 24.014l. 10s. 8d. This account never either much exceeds, or comes much under 21000l, the fum voted for the contingencies upon the establishment at home and abroad; for fo much of these payments as exceed the fum voted are carried to the account extraordinary. These articles being paid, some quarterly, fome half-yearly, and fome yearly, no very confiderable part of them can probably remain unpaid at the end of the eleventh month of that year, and cannot therefore be a charge upon this balance on the 28th of November 1780. Hence it follows, that supposing the amount of the claims for these services in 1780 not to exceed their amount in 1778, the claims for these services upon this balance, upon the 28th of November, 1780, was fo much only of the fums of 16,353la 28. 8d. and 24,914l. 198. 8d. making together 41,2681. 25: 4d. as had not been applied for and.

Tetisfied, during the first eleven months of that year; and therefore we think ourselves well grounded in an opinion, that the fum of 447,153l. 115. 32d. in the hands of the pay-mafter general of the forces, upon the 28th of November laft, was greatly more than was necessary to answer the claims upon him at that time for the fervice of the army.

An account being produced from the payoffice, of the balance in the hands of the present pay-master general on the 31st of December, 1768, and at the end of each fucceeding year, to the 31st of December, 1780, inclusive, it appeared, that the average yearly balance for 12 years, has been 585,8981.

It appeared also, that the pay-makers keep this balance for a confiderable length of time after going out of office. That of four pay-mafters general, each, upon quitting the office took with him the fum then in band; and that their halances were very confiderable 12 years after their refignation. Lord Holland's balance the Christmas after he quitted the office in 176; was 460,000. - in the year 1778, at the time his reprefentatives paid back into the exchequer 200,000l. it was 45:,ocol. and upon the 27th of Septem-Total .

her last it was 256,000l. so that during a period of 15 years after he was out of office, it suffered very little diminution from any claims whatever.

According to the prefent course of business in this office, upon the refignation of a pay-mafter general, his accounts of the year's establishment are carried on to the 24th of June, or the 24th. of December, preceding, or subsequent to his refignation, as is most convenient to the public fervice. When it is subsequent, he receives from the exchequer, though out of office, his proportion of the supply of the year to that time, and applies it in discharge of the demands upon the fervice, which accrued down to that period. But of these demands, some do not come in a course of payment, others are not applied for, till fome time after they are due; neither the nett off-reckonings nor the clearings, which are the last payments on account of a regiment, are discharged till 15 or 16 months after they become due; the general, staff, and reduced officers do not all apply immediately for their pay; warrants for contingencies are frequently not produced until feveral months after they are payable; and the pay master general has deputies in vaflous parts of the world, whose accounts he must N 2 have have time to adjust; it is therefore convenient and prevents trouble to the office, that his business should be carried on, and so much of the public money, as is necessary for that purpose, continue in his hands for some short time afterwards; and if the balance be confined within its proper bounds, whilst he is in office, the interest of the public will not be materially affected by the detention of a moderate balance for a few months after his resignation.

Was the pay-mafter general to retain his balance until his accounts are finally adjusted, the public would be kept out of their money to a very diffant and uncertain period. It is 16 years fince Lord Holland refigned, and his accounts are still in the office of the auditors of the imprest unsettled. A late pay-master general had been in office 13 years, and the first three years and a half only of his accounts are fent into that office, and in their first stage. Being accustomed to go in one track, long inattention to the methods of expediting bufinefs, added to a great increase of it, have produced long arrears, in the departments both of the pay-mafter general and the auditors of the imprest. It requires, and there ought to be, an extraordinary exertion in both offices offices to bring the accounts forward, and to introduce and establish that order and regularity, in making them up and keeping them, which should be strictly adhered to in every office of account. To obtain and preserve an accurate and competent knowledge of the state they are in, they should be made up and balanced once a year, to a certain stated time, and as soon as may be after that time is elapsed. But the time it takes to complete the payment of certain services, and the manner of carrying on some branches of the business in this office, are impediments to such a regulation, and seem not well calculated either for perspicuity or expedition.

There are certain fervices for which no specific sums are appropriated, either by the vote of parliament, or by the distribution in the establishment; but they are paid out of funds compounded of a great variety and number of articles, subtracted from various gross sums, either voted or allotted for certain purposes. These services are, Chelsea Hospital, the allowance to widows, the clothing of the regulars, exchequer sees, and salaries to certain officers. One of these funds is the poundage, which consists of various deductions of is, in the pound upon almost every individual sum (except the half pay, from which the deduction is only 6d in the pound) voted, or allotted by the distribution in the establishments, for the army services; out of this fund are paid, is, the returned poundage; that is, this very deduction, thus made, is paid back to a certain part of each corps; so that this part of it seems deducted for no other purpose, but that of returning it back again: 2dly, a part of this poundage is applied towards the expences of Chelsea Hospital: 3dly, the remainder pays the exchequer sees, salaries of the pay-master general and other officers.

The expences attending Chelsea Hospital are paid out of two funds blended together. The one is part of the poundage above mentioned: the other is formed of the deductions of one day's pay of every person named in some of the establishments, and of some of the persons named in other of the establishments. To form this fund and that of the poundage, and to make these several deductions, is the business of the pay-office.

One effect of these operations is, that in making up the state of every regiment in the pay-office, the sum alloted for its pay in the establishment tablishment must consist of fix parts; the poundage, the hospital, the subsistence, the allowance ' to widows, the off-reckonings, and the clearings; and fometimes respites. This state, befides the bufiness it creates in the pay-office. must be examined, computed, and figned by the agent; for he receives the clearings; which is the balance due to the regiment; the truth of which balance depends upon the justness of the calculation of the other divisions. It must be examined into, and computed by the auditor of the imprest; for the pay-master general taking credit on his account for the whole pay of each regiment, and furcharging himself with the total amount of the deductions of the poundage, hofpital, and widows, in every year, the auditor cannot know the accuracy of the furcharge without an examination of each article that composes it.

To persons accustomed to the course of office, these computations are easy and familiar: but they certainly must take up time; an object, considering the present state of the army accounts, worth attending to. If, instead of these deductions, certain specific, distinct sums were estimated and set apart for those services in the establish-establishment; if diffinct accounts were kept of the receipts and payments, under each head of fervice; if the clothing of the regulars were voted like the clothing of the militia, feparate from the establishment: if the sum allotted to a regiment should be the actual pay, and the whole of it be distributed among the officers and private men, and paid to them without deduction, at fuch times, and in fuch proportions, as might be deemed best for the service; if every diffinct fervice had its diffinct appropriation, which can be eafily estimated by the experience of preceding years; it should feem, this branch of the pay of the army might be carried on in a more fimple, expeditious, and intelligible man-La constant and a second a base for a

But General, now Lord Amherst, being then Commander in Chief in America, recommended this faving to government, in the victualling of the army. A faving it certainly is, and that very confiderable; yet it goes but a little way towards defraving the charge of victualling. For. besides that the ration itself is intrinsically worth double what is paid for it, the expence of tranfport and delivery, together with that of waste, which must always be allowed for, will fully authorize the estimate of the ration, at least at three times that expence to government, in the nearest garrisons and posts; and infinitely more in the remote parts of America; in fome of which, as in those of the upper lakes, it was computed during the American war to have coft government when delivered, at least half a dollar each ration; and in these posts no inconsiderable number are iffued. At Niagara alone 1600 rations per diem have been delivered for the space of feveral months together.

The commission officers are, by custom alone, commonly allowed to draw their rations, when there is no scarcity of any article in the stores, in such species, and at such periods, as they think proper.

Exclusive of the ration, the officers and foldiers are commonly supplied, in North America, with three pints of spruce beer each per diem, gratis; and sometimes with rum, in such quantities as the commander in chief for the time being thinks it expedient to order.

V. That each ferjeant, corporal, trumpeter, and private of cavalry, and each ferjeant, corporal, drummer, fifer, and private of infantry, shall be most exactly and regularly accounted with respectively for the whole of their said consolidated allowance on the 24th day of each month; and shall, without exception, have the money accruing thereby paid then into their hands: especial care being taken, at the same time, that they are provided with necessaries according to the schedule annexed.

VI. That the portion of each foldier's pay, both in cavalry and infantry, to be fet apart for his food, shall be the same as usual; and he shall be accounted with for the difference or balance of his pay, and shall receive the same at the time and under the conditions before prescribed for the receipt of the allowance.

VII. That it shall be certified on the back of the regimental monthly returns, that these regulations gulations have been strictly complied with at the time and in the manner specified.

VIII. If it shall appear, that in any corps these regulations have not been complied with as hereby directed and ordered, the commanding officer of such corps shall be reported to His MAJESTY, and made to answer for his disobedience of orders.

IX. That these regulations shall extend to the whose of the regular forces, sencible and militia corps, and shall be observed throughout Great Britain, Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, and Man.

X. That recruits for uneftablished corps shall not receive the allowance.

XI. That recruits, for established corps, shall not receive the allowance but from the time of their joining at head quarters, or at Chatham.

XII. That non commissioned officers and privates of cavalry, and non commissioned officers of infantry, on foreign stations, being supplied with provisions, or having other local advantages, shall not receive the allowance.

XIII. That privates of infantry on foreign flations, who have been used to receive half-yearly the old allowance for necessaries (formerly called poundage) shall receive in lieu thereof, Adjutant General's Office, 25th May, 1797.

GENERAL ORDERS,

For the Dragoon Guards, Dragoons, and Fencible Cavalry.

WHEREAS, over and above the provision made for clothing, for Chelsea Hospital, for lodging, and for medical assistance, and likewise over and above the allowance of beer and other articles provided in barracks and quarters, and of bread provided at a reduced rate in camp, the private dragoon of the line serving at home heretofore received the pay of 8d. per day, which, together with the sum of 3 d. per day, granted to him by his Majesty's warrant for establishing and consolidating certain other allowances lately given him, amounts to the sum of 1 d.

His Majesty having been graciously pleased to take the same into his consideration, is pleased to direct, that under the following regulations, there shall, from the 25th of this present month of May, be paid to each private dragoon, in addition to the faid fum of 114d. the further fum of 34d making in the whole the fum of 15d daily. Out of this advance of pay, the foldier is to defray the extra expense of bread and meat now paid by the public, which at present amounts on an average to the fum of 14d; fo that the nett increase of allowance now given to each foldier will be 2d. per diem.

With respect to the disbursement of this 15d. per day, his Majesty has been pleased to order that a sum not exceeding 4s. 6d. per week, shall be applied towards the expence of the foldier's mess (including vegetables, &c.) unless he himself shall choose to appropriate a further part of his pay to that purpose.

That a fum not exceeding 2s. 7½d. per week, shall be retained for necessaries, to be accounted for as usual, monthly.

That the remainder of the pay, amounting to 19[‡]d. per week, shall be paid to the soldier, subject to the accustomed deduction for washing and articles for cleaning his clothes and appointments.

And his Majesty, out of his royal bounty, is further pleased to order and direct, for the benefit of the foldier, that in camp he shall receive the sum of 5\frac{1}{4}d. per week, being the difference between the allowance, and value of bread and beer in quarters, and the ordinary increased supply of bread in camp.

That if meat, of the quality proper to be provided for him, should exceed the price of 6d. per pound, or bread of the houshold quality the price of 1½d. per pound, such extra price shall be allowed by the public for a quantity not exceeding three quarters of a pound of meat, and 11b. of bread, per day, per man.

That when any foldier shall, with the approbation of his commanding officer, provide himself with lodging, and with the several articles to which his billet would entitle him, he shall receive the same allowance as the publican would have been entitled to under such billet.

His Majesty is further pleased to order, that the pay and allowances to a trumpeter shall be daily, 19d.

That the pay and allowance to a corporal shall be daily 194d.

That the pay and allowance to a ferjeant, shall be daily, 28. 2d.

cord; rosettes or tufts of the same brought to the edge of the brims.

The fword blade to be 32 inches long; flraight, and made to cut and thrust; the shoulder of it at least one inch broad: the guard, ponemel, and shell, to be brass and gilt: the gripe of silver twisted wire. The knot crimson and gold in stripes.

The gorget to be gilt, with the king's cypher and crown over it engraved in the center; to be worn with a ribband, and rofette or tuft at each end of the fame colour as the facing of the regimental clothing.

Of Volunteer Companies, and Corps of Yeomanry Cavalry.

THESE corps have been embodied during the present war for the internal defence of the country, and their stations being local and permanent, they are composed of respectable men of the district, whose Amor Patrice is above the fear of being exposed to the necessary toils of a military education.

VOLUNTEER COMPANIES.

THESE corps sometimes serve without pay; when otherwise, they receive it from government regulated in the following manner.

The officers are subsisted at the same rate as those of the regular forces for the days on which they exercise, only, not exceeding two days in the week. Constant pay is however allowed to one officer per company, not exceeding that of a captain, provided he be taken from the half-pay.

The non-commissioned officers and private men have the same rate of pay, viz. one shilling each for ever, day's exercise of six hours, or a number of hours on different days equivalent thereto, not to exceed two days in the week as before.

One drill ferjeant in each company has conftant full pay, with fuch allowances as ferjeants of regular corps of infantry have.

The mode of arming the men varies according to fituation. Those in the interior towns are armed altogether with firelocks. Those on the coast are sometimes supplied with fire-locks altogether; but if they have the means of being trained to the great guns, then one third are only allowed fmall arms, and the rest are exercifed at the artillery.

The clothing is to confift of a coat, waiftcoat, and breeches, round hat and cockade, on which account the following allowance is given:

The officers are charged 12s. 6d. fees by the War Office when their commissions are issued.

YEOMANRY CAVALRY.

CONSTANT pay is allowed to officers and men, while employed on actual fervice by order of those who are empowered to call them out; and all contingent expences, properly and unavoidably incurred, are to be reimbursed after the usual investigation at the War Office.

One serjeant per troop has constant pay, with the same allowance as serjeants of regular cavalry.

Twelve carbines are allowed to each troop.— The accourrements of each man to confift of a pillol, broad-fword, fword-belt, cartridge-box and ftrap, a waist-belt, and holsters, and are either to be furnished by the Ordnance, or an equivalent in money to be given in lieu of them.
